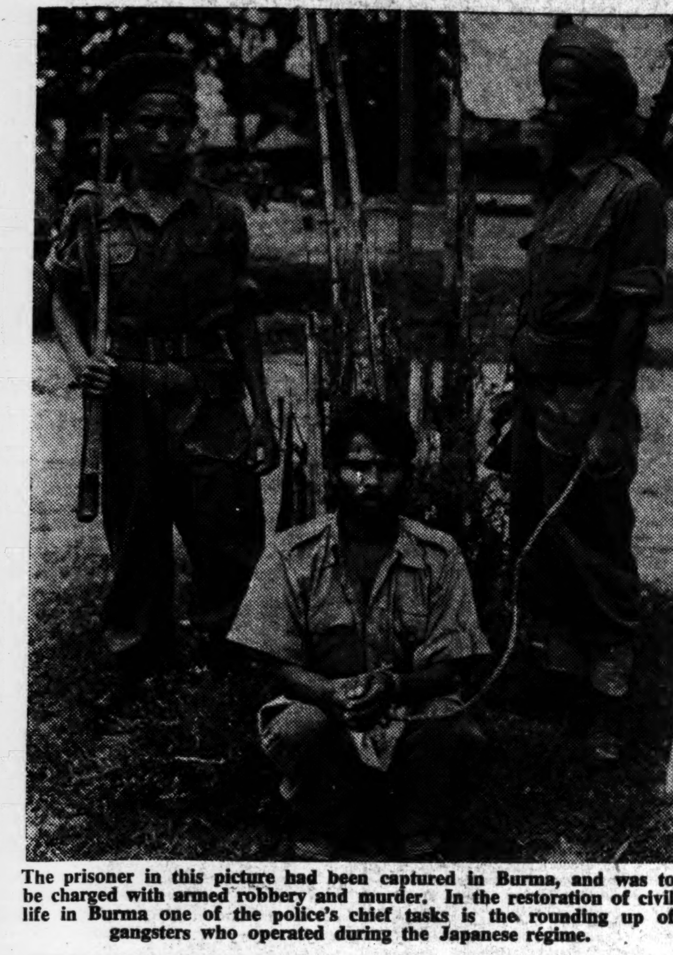
ATOMIC BOMB NOW IN USE AGAINST JAPAN



The prisoner in this picture had been captured in Burma, and was to be charged with armed robbery and murder. In the restoration of civil life in Burma one of the police's chief tasks is the rounding up of gangsters who operated during the Japanese régime.

Tokyo Raided as Warned Cities Burn

TOKYO was raided yesterday afternoon by 130 Mustangs, according to the Japanese News Agency.

Typhoon weather had cleared to let the bombers through to resume their pre-invasion onslaught on the Japanese home islands.

Four more forewarned cities are still smoking from the night's Super-Fortress raids, and 17 other cities also warned await destruction, states a Reuter cable from Guam. Meanwhile, the first of 30,000 Canadian troops have reached advanced Pacific bases, and will be followed by air squadrons and 60 ships of the Canadian Navy.

In Sunday night's attacks 580 Super-Fortresses dropped 3,850 tons of bombs on the Obe synthetic oil centre on the Inland Sea and three other cities, making a total of 14 towns and cities forewarned by leaflet and then raided by General Spaatz's strategic force of Super-Fortresses.

A renewed demand for "an Eisenhower of the Pacific" arose in America yesterday, while Admiral Nimitz was explaining the new picture of divided command brought about by the extension of General MacArthur's command of the Ryukus.

It was made clear at Advanced Pacific Headquarters on Guam yesterday that Admiral Nimitz retains control of all naval and navy air forces and naval bases, while General Spaatz retains command of all strategic air forces.

A definition of Admiral Mountbatten's future powers as completion of a "Big Four" command is awaited.

Across Atlantic on Cup of Fuel!

COMMENTING on the difficulty of comparing the power of the new atomic bomb with any previously known force, one scientist said: "If the force could be harnessed to industry one might say it would be equivalent to driving the Queen Mary across the Atlantic with a teacup full of fuel!"

Plans for First Meeting of Assembly

Representatives of fourteen nations will meet in London this week to plan the first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations, writes the P.A. diplomatic correspondent. The delegates will hold their first meeting at the Church House, Westminster, on Thursday.

The nations are the "Big Five"—Britain, the United States, Russia, France and China—with Australia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Czechoslovakia, Persia, Mexico, the Netherlands and Yugo-Slavia, which together form the Executive Committee of the Preparatory Commission of the United Nations.

The "spade work" accomplished, the Preparatory Commission will be summoned, and each of the 45 signatories to the United Nations Charter will send a representative to London. The Commission will draw up the agenda for the first meeting of the General Assembly.

Noted Isolationist Dead

Senator Hiram Johnson, veteran Isolationist, who gained notoriety by his stand against the League of Nations, died yesterday in the naval hospital at Bethesada, Maryland.

Startling New Invention

[Reuter, A.P., and P.A.]

PRESIDENT TRUMAN YESTERDAY STARTLED THE WORLD OF SCIENCE BY ANNOUNCING THAT AN AMERICAN AEROPLANE ON SUNDAY DROPPED AN ATOMIC BOMB ON A JAPANESE SUPPLY BASE ON HIROSHIMA.

"THAT BOMB," HE SAID, "HAD MORE POWER THAN 20,000 TONS OF T.N.T., AND MORE THAN 2,000 TIMES THE BLAST POWER OF THE 10-TONNERS DROPPED BY THE R.A.F. ON GERMANY."

Disclosing that an even more powerful bomb is in development, and that British and American scientists have been working together on it for years, the President described this new bomb as "a harnessing of the basic power of the universe, and the most amazing advance in warfare since the discovery of gun-powder.

"This force, from which the sun draws its power, has been loosed against those who brought war to the Far East," he declared; and added: "Let there be no mistake—we shall destroy completely Japan's power to make war."

Declaring that the Potsdam ultimatum to Japan was issued to spare the Japanese people from utter destruction, President Truman said:—"We are now prepared to obliterate more rapidly and completely every productive enterprise the Japanese have above ground. We shall destroy their docks, their factories and their communications. If they do not now accept our terms they may expect a rain of ruin from the air the like of which has never been seen on this earth."

Saying that, normally, everything about work with atomic energy would be made public, the President said that, under present circumstances, it is not intended to divulge the technical processes of production or all its military applications "pending a further examination of the possible methods of protecting the U.S. and the rest of the world from the danger of sudden destruction.

"The fact that we can now release atomic energy," the President stated, "ushers in a new era in man's understanding of nature's forces, and I shall recommend the Congress of the U.S. to consider promptly the establishment of an appropriate commission to control the production and use of atomic power within the U.S. I shall give further consideration and make a further recommendation to Congress as to how atomic power can become a powerful and forceful influence towards the maintenance of world peace.

GERMANS FAILED

"Before 1939 it was the accepted belief of scientists that it was theoretically possible to release atomic energy, but no one knew any practical method of doing it. By 1942, however, we knew the Germans were working feverishly to find a way to add atomic energy to other engines of war with which they hoped to enslave the world, but they failed.

"We may be grateful to Providence that the Germans got V1s and V2s late and in limited quantities, and even more grateful that they did not get the atomic bomb at all.

"The battle of the laboratories held fateful risks for us as well as the battle of the air, land and sea, and we have now won the battle of the laboratories as we have won other battles."

Stating that more than 125,000 persons worked to construct atomic bomb factories in the U.S., the President said that over 65,000 people were now engaged at the operating plants.

President Truman said that Mr. Stimson, U.S. War Secretary, would give further details, including facts concerning the atomic power sites at Oakridge, Tennessee, Richland, Washington, and installations near Santa Fe, New Mexico. He also disclosed that Mr. Churchill and the late President Roosevelt agreed on the wisdom of carrying on atomic bomb manufacture in the U.S.A. out of reach of enemy bombing.

ACHIEVEMENT

Mr. Stimson hailed the new bomb as the "greatest achievement of the combined efforts of science, industry and the military in all history.

"The atomic bomb has been developed with the full knowledge and co-operation of Britain and Canada, and substantial patent control has been accomplished in these countries," he said.

Ramifications of the atomic bombs project, said Mr. Stimson, reached such proportions that in August, 1943, it was decided to establish a combined policy committee, composed of Field-Marshal Sir John Dill (British Military Member of the Joint Staff Mission in Washington) and Colonel J. J. Llewellin (Resident Minister in Charge of Supply in Washington), for Britain; Mr. Henry Stimson, Dr. James B. Conant (President of Harvard University) and Dr. Vannevar Bush (Director of the Office of Scientific Research), for the U.S.A.; and Mr. C. D. Howe (Canadian Minister of Munitions), for Canada. Colonel Llewellin was later replaced by Sir Ronald Campbell, who in turn was succeeded by Lord Halifax. The late Field-Marshal Dill was succeeded by Field-Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson.

USEFUL POWER

"With the evidence now at hand, it appears inevitable," said Mr. Stimson, "that many useful contributions to the well-being of mankind will ultimately flow from these discoveries when the world situation makes it possible for science and industry to concentrate on their peace-time applications. Much further research, however, is needed to design machines for the conversion of atomic energy into useful power. How long this will take no one can predict, but it will certainly be many years."

Mr. Stimson disclosed that the organising genius behind the scheme was Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, who planned the scientific research in a desert laboratory in New Mexico. "The development of the bomb itself has been largely due to his genius and the inspiration and leadership he has given to his associates," Mr. Stimson said. Dr. Oppenheimer, 41-year-old physicist, was born in New York. He went to Harvard and then to England, studying at Cambridge. He took his doctorate of Physics at Göttingen University, in Germany, and later became Professor of Physics in California University.

SMALL BOMB

A representative of the Ministry of Aircraft Production, who described himself as neither scientist nor bomb expert, told a Press Association reporter: "The atomic bomb is ten times smaller than a block-buster, but many times as powerful. Speaking in extremely conservative language, one bomb would be equivalent to a severe earthquake, and would utterly remove a town.

"This invention will probably have a revolutionary effect on our future lives. The 'scientific brains trust' have solved the problem of how to confine and release almost unlimited energy; it is impossible yet to measure its effects."

The vital radioactive metal, uranium, needed in the making of the atom bomb, was supplied by Canada, one of the world's richest sources of uranium, to eke out American supplies of the material, says Reuter's Ottawa correspondent.

Mr. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions, said Canadian scientists played an important part in the development of the bomb, and that Canada undertook to establish in co-operation with the U.S. and Britain a plant for further investigations in North-west Ottawa.

Uranium, a hard white metal, first discovered in 1789, but not isolated until 1840, occurs in the black mineral pitchblende and is radioactive. It is also found in Cornwall, Bohemia, Norway, parts of the U.S.A., and in the Belgian Congo.

"Birth of a New Age"

THE first experimental man-made atomic bomb explosion in history took place on July 14th on top of a steel tower in the desert of New Mexico while thunder, lightning and rain shook the skies and scientists and military experts crouched in timber and earth shelters at the controls, says Reuter.

As the various components arrived from distant points tension among the scientists mounted. They knew that a false move would destroy them and all their efforts.

All seemed to feel that they were present at the birth of a new age—the age of atomic energy.

The nearest observation point was set up 10,000 yards south of the tower, and the best observation post, 17,000 yards from the tower, was manned by key men in the project, including General Leslie Groves, Dr. Vannevar Bush, head of the Office of Scientific Research, and Dr. James B. Conant, President of Harvard University. A soldier-scientist stood by at a reserve switch, ready to attempt to stop the explosion on an emergency order; but the test went through—with truly shattering success.

An eye-witness said: "There was a blinding flash, lighting up the whole area brighter than the brightest daylight. A mountain range three miles from the observation point stood out in bold relief. There came a tremendous sustained roar, a heavy pressure wave, which knocked down two men outside the control tower, five miles from the scene of the explosion. Immediately afterwards a huge, multi-coloured, surging cloud boiled to an altitude of over 40,000 feet. Clouds in its path disappeared. The steel tower from which the bomb had been suspended had been entirely vapourised. Where the tower stood there was a huge sloping crater."

The U.S. War Department gave this picture of the dropping of the first atomic bomb on Hiroshima: "An impenetrable cloud of dust and smoke covered the target area, making accurate reports of damage impossible."

Hiroshima is a fortified port at the head of Hiroshima Bay, on West Honshu, 189 miles west of Kobe. It has a population of 244,000, and is one of the chief supply depôts of the Japanese Army. It has ship-building yards, cotton mills and war industries.

Petain's Letter to Hitler Surprised His Counsel

THE reading of a letter which Pétain sent to Hitler provided a dramatic moment in yesterday's trial of the Marshal. The letter, which M. Mornet, prosecuting counsel, described as being "not just a request for collaboration, but constituting in itself a military alliance," caused consternation among Pétain's three defence counsel, who went into hurried conversation.

The letter said in part:—

"My first duty is to reconstitute an army capable of safeguarding France and her Empire. Marshal von Rundstedt has been given power by you to take all decisions and to conclude all necessary arrangements in so far as German action is concerned. I appreciate your intentions kindly expressed at the end of your letter regarding your determination to collaborate with France and help her to reconquer her Colonial Empire."

Prince Xavier of Bourbon Parma, uncle of the Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, who was sent to Dachau concentration camp for his activities as a leader of the French underground forces, was one of yesterday's witnesses in Pétain's defence.

"None of us at Dachau had a bad word to say against Pétain himself," he declared. "Pétain, by his intervention, saved an incalculable number of lives."

General Odillon Picquandart said that Vichy tried to send the Allies a list of the equipment required to resist the Germans, and set up secret underground factories to make baby armoured cars and anti-tank grenades. From July, 1941, the French General Staff encouraged the hiding of equipment in huge dumps, so secret that "we shall be finding it for 20 years." The work was successful only because of Pétain's moral support.

General Lacaille before closing his evidence spoke of contacts between Vichy and the British Government in January, 1941. He said that Colonel Groussard, Inspector General of the French National Security Police, went to Britain on behalf of Pétain, and was told by Mr. Winston Churchill and Mr. Anthony Eden: "We are temporarily separated. Let us do each other as little harm as possible."

£1,000 A DAY

The trial is costing the State more than £1,000 a day in judges' fees and expenses, living allowances for jurors from the provinces, salaries for 1,000 extra gendarmes who are guarding the Palace of Justice, and other items such as light and food for Pétain and his wife.

The trial seems likely to run into a fourth week.

M. Andre le Troquer, President of the Paris Municipal Council, suggested yesterday, according to a Reuter message, that Pétain should be publicly degraded in the Champs Elysees by an ordinary French private, and added: "It matters very little after all, whether the old traitor is shot or not."

General Lafargue, a later witness, caused laughter when he cried in a passionate voice: "The armistice saved the French Army and North Africa. The armistice saved Britain, Russia, and, perhaps, the United States. We were lucky to have Pétain to lead us. With Weygand or Foch everything would have been lost."

CREDIT TO DANISH SCIENTIST

NIELS BOHR, refugee Danish scientist, credited by U.S. Secretary of War Stimson, with helping in the development of the atomic bomb, escaped from the Germans by fleeing from Denmark to Sweden during September, 1943, in a fishing boat. He was immediately surrounded by Swedish police, at the request of the Danish authorities—to prevent his falling into the hands of German agents, says an A.P. Correspondent.

Bohr had halted his laboratory research on atomic theories in 1940 as a protest against the Germans' occupation, but, as the war took a turn for the worst against the Germans, the Nazis were anxious to force Bohr to work with them on the development of the new explosives.

After twelve days in Sweden, Bohr was whisked to Britain in the bomb bay of a Mosquito, which flew him through the German air blockade over Norway, and with him went much of the priceless data which had won him the Nobel Prize for atomic research.

Bohr also had data on a new war invention involving atomic explosions, and this was presumably, extensively used in the development of the atomic bomb which is being dropped on Japan.

An A.P. cable from New York says that the world-wide hunt for the atomic bomb began when a German mathematician, a Jewish woman named Lize Meitner, calculated that something which had puzzled scientists for ten years was really an explosion of atoms of uranium. Within a fortnight after she had published her calculation the great physics laboratories of Britain, the United States and Germany had verified her prediction.

The atomic bomb was to have been Hitler's V3 weapon, and, but for a British and Norwegian paratroop raid on laboratories at Rjukan, Norway, in February, 1943, it would have been used.

A year later the Nazis had another plant in Norway, but the R.A.F. ended this venture and destroyed 12 tons of heavy water—a vital ingredient to the atomic bomb.

BRITAIN'S PART IN NEW DISCOVERY

BRITAIN'S part in the discovery of the new atomic bomb, written by Mr. Winston Churchill, was released last night in London. Mr. Churchill wrote:—

By the year 1939 it had become widely recognised among scientists of many nations that the release of energy by atomic fission (a cleaving or breaking up into two parts) was a possibility. The problems which remained to be solved before this possibility could be turned into practical achievement were, however, manifold and immense, and few scientists would at that time have ventured to predict that an atomic bomb could be ready for use by 1945. Nevertheless, the potentialities of the project were so great that H.M. Government thought it right that research should be carried on, in spite of the many competing claims on our scientific manpower. At this stage the research was carried out mainly in our universities, principally Oxford, Cambridge, London (Imperial College), Liverpool and Birmingham.

At the same time, under the general arrangements then in force for the pooling of scientific information, there was a full interchange of ideas between the scientists carrying out this work in the United Kingdom and those in the United States.

Such progress was made that, by the summer of 1941, a committee of leading scientists, of which Sir George Paget Thomson was President, was able to report that, in their view, there was a reasonable chance that an atomic bomb could be produced before the end of the war.

At the end of August, 1941, substantial progress was being made.

SPECIAL DIVISION

It was then decided to set up within the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research a special division to direct the work, and Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., agreed to release Mr. W. A. Akers to take charge of this directorate, which we called, for purposes of secrecy, the "Directorate of Tube Alloys."

There was set up, under the chairmanship of Sir John Anderson, a consultative council, composed of the President of the Royal Society, the Chairman of the Scientific Advisory Committee of the Cabinet, the Secretary of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research and Lord Cherwell. The Minister of Aircraft Production, at that time Lord Brabazon, also served on this committee.

Under the chairmanship of Mr. Akers, there was also a technical committee, on which sat the scientists who were directing the different sections of the work, and some others. This committee was originally composed of Sir James Chadwick, Professor Peierls and Drs. Halban, Simon and Slade. Later it was joined by Sir Charles Darwin and Professors Cockcroft, Oliphant and Feather. Full use was also made of university and industrial laboratories.

On October 11th, 1941, the late President Roosevelt sent me a letter suggesting that any extended efforts on this important matter might usefully be co-ordinated, or even jointly conducted. Accordingly, all British and American efforts were joined, and a number of British scientists concerned proceeded to the United States.

By the summer of 1942 this expanded programme of research had confirmed, with surer and broader foundations, the promising forecasts which had been made a year earlier, and the time had come when a decision must be made whether or not to proceed with the construction of large-scale production plants.

Great Britain at this period was fully extended in war production and we could not afford such grave interference with the current munitions programmes, on which our warlike operations depended. Moreover, Great Britain was within easy range of German bombers, and the risk of raiders from the sea or air could not be ignored. The United States, however, where parallel or similar progress had been made, was free from these dangers. The decision was therefore taken to build full-scale production plants in America.

Mr. W. A. Akers is research director and a member of the Board of Imperial Chemical Industries.

Sir George Paget Thomson, a Nobel prize-winner, is one of the greatest authorities on the atom. Professor of Physics at the Imperial College of Science, he has been scientific adviser to the Air Ministry since 1942.

Sir James Chadwick is another Nobel prize-winner. Professor of Physics at Liverpool University he startled science in 1932 by discovering an uncharged particle, the neutron, and thereby completely transformed the conceptions of the constitution of matter.

Dr. Charles G. Darwin, Director of the National Physical Laboratory, was one of the eight British scientists whose visit to Russia in June was banned by the Government. He has been engaged on highly secret work throughout the war, and the atomic bomb was one of the great secrets.

Professor J. D. Cockcroft, of Cambridge, an authority on the atom, became famous 13 years ago, when he disintegrated atoms for the first time by machinery. This brought atomic energy within sight of industrial and war-time exploitation.

[It will be remembered that associated with Professor Crockett in the splitting of the atom was Dr. F. T. S. Walton, an Ulsterman, now a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and a Lecturer in Experimental Physics in Dublin University. They were jointly credited with the achievement. A number of those mentioned by Mr. Churchill were working at the Cavendish Laboratory under Lord Rutherford at the time.]

Professor N. Feather, also of Cambridge, claimed to be the first man to split artificially the oxygen atom. He did it in 1932 with the neutron, which travels at a speed of 10,000 miles a second—an indication of the blast effect of the atomic bomb.

BANK HOLIDAY SPOILED BY WEATHER

WHAT at one time held promise of being the most enjoyable August week-end since the outbreak of war actually finished by being one of the most disappointing. Virtually all the essentials for a good holiday were there, and the people were only too eager to avail themselves of them, but the weather "let them down."

Admittedly it was quite warm, and the sun shone fairly regularly, but the showers were all too frequent and heavy. On occasions Dublin's central thoroughfares were lashed by sweeping rain, as if from minor cloudbursts. Almost every hotel and guest-house within a twelve miles radius of Nelson Pillar was booked out. Dublin had seldom been so thronged with visitors.

Coras Iompair Eireann officials, budgetting for endless tram and bus queues, were disappointed, or perhaps one should say relieved. At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when normally queues would stretch nearly up to the Parnell Monument, Dun Laoghaire and Dalkey trams at the Pillar terminus were scarcely half full. Later in the evening the weather was quite good, but by that time most people had lost their incentive to go anywhere near the sea.

The lack of tram and bus queues was more than balanced by the queues that formed at picture houses, theatres and restaurants.

The thronged streets on Saturday, a really warm day, had an international atmosphere, with the uniforms of American, Canadian, Australian and New Zealand troops standing out in sharp contrast against the general civilian background. There was a big attendance at the National Maritime Week Exhibition, while hundreds of people visited the flotilla of Marine Service torpedo boats tied up at Sir John Rogerson's Quay. Most of the big Dun Laoghaire yachts left harbour on Saturday to attend the annual regatta at Wicklow.

U.S. Army's Parting Tribute To Northern Ireland

THE United States Army officially left Northern Ireland last night when the key of Langford Lodge, the last giant air-base in Ulster to be occupied by the Americans, was handed back to the Royal Air Force.

The ceremony, which took place at the American Red Cross Services Club in Belfast, was attended by five Northern Ireland Cabinet Ministers, including the Prime Minister; by the Commanding General of the British Army in Northern Ireland, Major-General G. C. Bucknall, C.B., M.C.; by the Air Officer Commanding Northern Ireland, Air Commodore A. R. Churchman, D.F.C.; by Captain Eckland, D.S.O., R.N., representing the Flag Officer in Charge.

The chief of the U.S.A. visitors was Major-General Walter M. Robertson, who commanded the 15th Corps and he and three other Generals flew to Northern Ireland from their various war theatres specially to attend the ceremonies.

Sir Basil Brooke paid tribute to the efficiency and generosity of the Americans. Theirs was the first country in Europe to welcome them and they were proud of it he said. "There has always been fellowship between Ulster and America. The same hardihood of character that has kept us in the Empire made us good colonists in the United States.

"We take great pride in the number of your Presidents that were of Ulster stock. There is hardly a family in Northern Ireland that has not relations or, as we call them, friends in America. Ulster is a very small country, and the States a very big one, but we share the same gifts for friendliness. The American forces are leaving us, but, for their sakes, we are glad that they will see their homes again. But, remember, the greatest compliment they can pay us is to come back again, and a hearty welcome awaits them."

General Robertson said:—"There are few men among the number stationed here who have not formed some true friendship, have not profited by that friendship, and have not the desire to return to Ireland to renew acquaintances. This marks the symbolic closing of the many installations in Northern Ireland. Our happiness in turning homewards is tempered by a deep regret at leaving our war homes here. Speaking personally, and on behalf of the United States Army and Government, I take extreme pleasure in expressing appreciation for the many contributions made by Northern Ireland to us, ranging from your outstanding and continuous hospitality to the unfailing aid in our preparation for invasion and prosecution of the war from your bases. Each of us has gained a much closer understanding with and admiration for the other."

A statement from Lieut.-General John C. H. Lee was read by Brigadier-General Koenig. It said: "Since it has become impracticable for me to be with you in Belfast upon the occasion of the American Forces' official closing of the installations your Government has so generously provided for us, will you please accept and convey to your guests my regrets and my heartfelt appreciation. It has been appropriate for so many of the American Forces to be stationed through Northern Ireland and to have first landed in Ulster for the crusade against Nazism and its intended enslavement of the world.

"The freedom we are defending has been achieved by our English-speaking Allies through centuries of struggle on both sides of the earth. America's contribution was largely inspired by Ulster in response to their clear conscience and in keeping with the highest British traditions. Countless families, including my own, left Ulster for America, fearlessly seeking the freedoms they were being denied, but which soon followed them and developed wherever the mother tongue was spoken.

"Ours has been an unceasing crusade for Christian democracy, and again we are pledged with God-given opportunity to help form a better world. The ties that have bound us through the centuries have been strengthened through our living together, training together, and fighting on to victory in a common cause. All this has been made possible, and, indeed, inevitable, through the warm-hearted, unselfish welcome and co-operation we have received at your hands.

"Typical of the fine British partnership has been the initial reception and unfailing understanding of the people and the Government of Northern Ireland. May this partnership have endurance, and may we Americans prove not unworthy of this trust in us, first as guests, and now as brothers in freedom, under the fatherhood of God."

GERMANS PROMISED "THREE FREEDOMS" BY MONTGOMERY

[Reuter.]

FIELD-MARSHAL MONTGOMERY, in a message read for him over Hamburg radio last night, told the German people: "It is my intention that you shall have freedom to get down to your own way of life."

The second stage in the rehabilitation of their country had begun, he said. In this new stage, they would be freed from unemployment, boredom, and fear of the future.

He promised the formation of trade unions and democratic political parties, and the restoration of self-government on democratic principles.

Since the British zone had been under military government, Field-Marshal Montgomery said, members of the German armed forces had been sorted out by trades and occupations. Many thousands had been discharged to work on the land and in other spheres.

"This will continue. There is every prospect of a good harvest and you must see that it is all gathered in.

"My officers have been active in their endeavours to arrange that the German population have adequate food and housing and are kept free from disease.

"The first stage in the rehabilitation of Germany is under way. I am now going to proceed with the second stage of the Allied policy.

"I will relax by stages the present restrictions on the freedom of the Press. It is Allied policy, subject to the necessity for maintaining military security, to encourage in Germany the formation of free trade unions and democratic political parties, which may form the basis of an ordered and peaceful German society in the future.

"We aim at the restoration of local self-government throughout Germany on democratic principles, and it is our intention that the Nazis' removal from office shall be replaced by persons who, by their political and moral qualities, can assist in developing genuinely democratic institutions.

"It is our purpose also to reorganise the judicial system in accordance with the principles of democracy, of justice under law, and of equal rights for all citizens without distinction of race.

"You may hold public meetings and discussions. I am anxious that you should talk over your problems among yourselves and generally set on foot measures to help yourselves.

"I have relaxed the rules about fraternisation. This will enable us to have contact with you and to understand your problems the more easily.

"I will do all I can to get the population of the British zone through the coming winter, but you, the German people, must work to help yourselves. I will continue to see that you are all kept informed by radio and newspapers of how we are progressing—I will give you German news as well as foreign news.

"I expect the co-operation of you all in the second stage of the Allied policy."

Field-Marshal Montgomery was at Lord's cricket ground, London, at the time his speech was broadcast.

TWO OFFICERS ON DRIFTING YACHT SAVED

THE twenty-four-foot yacht, Thelma, owned by Mr. Sean Ryan, Cork—and manned by two Army officers—for which an all-night search had been made by the Department of Defence steam launch, John Adams, and the Ballycotton lifeboat, was picked up early yesterday morning eight miles from Kinsale by the Fleetwood steam trawler, Cameo.

The occupants of the Thelma, Comdt. John O'Donovan, 3rd Brigade Adjutant, Collins Barracks, Cork, and Captain Sean McCormack, Ballincollig, were taken aboard the trawler, and the yacht was subsequently towed into Kinsale.

When found the Thelma was drifting out to sea, with her mainsail completely gone. She was shipping a good deal of water, and it gave her occupants all they could do to keep her baled out. When seen later yesterday the officers seemed none the worse for their adventurous night.

The Thelma was taking part in a race from Crosshaven, Cork harbour, to Kinsale, a distance of sixteen miles, and was last sighted by other competitors off Flat Head, near the Sovereign Island, with torn sails.

Spain's Attitude To Axis Pressure

Volunteers for General Franco in the Spanish civil war came not only from Axis countries, but Ireland and Portugal, states the Madrid newspaper, A B C, when commenting on the decisions at the Potsdam Conference.

The Madrid Ya said that Spain resisted strong Axis pressure to enter the war against the Allied Nations, and did not stab beaten countries in the back.

Spain's neutrality obviously favoured the Allies, rendering the Mediterranean safe and the North African landings possible.

An anti-Franco broadcast urging Spaniards "to recover their liberty and hinder Franco's régime" followed news that exiled Spanish republican leaders might reach agreement in a few days.

The broadcast came last night from a station calling itself "Espana Independiente," and operating from an unknown area. The news of possible agreement soon between the Spanish republican groups came from Dr. Juan Negrin, former Republican Premier of Spain, who spent the week-end talking with other exiled political leaders in Mexico.

"Ships Purchased For Eire"

The Government Information Bureau stated yesterday:—

"There is no truth in the statement, repeated by the Irish Times today, that ships have been purchased in the United States for the Irish Mercantile Marine."

PROTECTION against INFECTION

There is only one safe way to fight Infection—Be on your guard; have a reliable antiseptic always at hand. HYSAN surgical antiseptic, the latest triumph of chemical research is 5 times more effective in germicidal power than pure carbolic acid. It is pleasant to use and although deadly to germs it is kind to the most tender skin.

For home or hospital, for health and hygiene Hysan is indispensable. Use it promptly for cuts, abrasions and skin affections and avoid the danger of blood poisoning. Use it for personal hygiene and as a sure protection against infection. Full directions on every bottle. Obtainable from all chemists.

Donatus Atones For Galway Failure

A VERY large crowd came to the holiday meeting at Leopardstown yesterday and they enjoyed an interesting and exciting afternoon's racing.

A first-class field of handicappers went to the post for the valuable mile race, and Major McCalmont's neatly-made little colt, Slide On, was a very firm favourite. It was a spectacular race to watch. King Kong led for a furlong and then Colomb's Kingdom took up the running, closely followed by Lorella, Dallington, Donatus, Charles's Wain and Carlist. There was scarcely three lengths between these six horses.

At half-way Carlist joined Colomb's Kingdom, and, going into the last bend, had taken a slight lead of Mr. McGrath's colt. On their heels came Donatus, and Slide On was making his way forward rapidly on the outside. Swinging into the straight, Donatus loomed up alongside Carlist.

LIKES THE COURSE.

Immediately afterwards Donatus spurted right ahead. Gamely, Carlist tried to wear him down, but Donatus continued to gallop home strongly, and won well by two lengths. Slide On, running on at the finish, was half a length away, third.

Obviously Donatus found the flat Leopardstown course more to his liking than the gradients at Galway. He was stylishly and skilfully ridden by J. Tyrell.

Mrs. McCalmont supplied the favourite for the mile and a half handicap in the three-year-old filly, Lady Juliet. She spoiled her chance by dwelling at the start, and, though she made up sufficient ground to come within striking distance of the leaders, the effort had taken the edge off her speed.

A PROCESSION.

The race, indeed, was something of a procession, for Haparanda settled down in front, and, galloping smoothly throughout, was not unduly troubled to remain there to the judge's box. Torch and Head Dress chased him all the way, and coming into the straight Grand Inquisitor threw out a determined challenge.

Haparanda, too, had failed dismally at Galway. Incidentally, he is a half-brother to the three-year-old, Rivock, who won easily at Stockton on Saturday. Both of them were bred by Haparanda's trainer, More O'Ferrall.

For the defeat of Slide On and Lady Juliet, Fetherstonhaugh and his chief patrons were to some extent compensated by Golden Spur's success in the Three Rock Plate. He was a red-hot favourite.

He took the lead from Jerry B. at the head of the straight, and then, though he lost ground by jumping the road, stayed on stoutly under the whip to withstand an ominous challenge from the heavily-backed five-year-old, Creggmore Boy. There was only a head between them at the finishing post.

Golden Spur is a very handsome colt. He is by Casanova, half-brother to Precipitation and Persian Gulf, out of Lapel, a high-class race mare by Apelle.

LOOKED A CERTAINTY

Tyrell rode his second winner at the meeting on Lonesome Trail in the maiden two-year-old race. On form, Mr. Kerr's colt looked almost "cast-iron," and, therefore, the bookmakers seemed generous in laying odds against him. All the same, there was limitless confidence behind the filly, Galter, from Mr. Myerscough's successful stable.

Lonesome Trail was quickly into his stride, came down the hill well, and after two furlongs drew into a clear lead on the rails. He was moving effortlessly, and eventually he won, without being exerted, by four lengths and two lengths from the Panorama colt, Zuider Zee, and the recent English importation, Goldhawk, half-brother to Pretty Jane, who won the apprentice race on Saturday.

Lonesome Trail is a powerfully-built colt by the beautifully-bred but somewhat disappointing sire, Canon Law.

REAL BARGAIN

He was turned out in splendid condition yesterday, and will likely run extremely well in the "1,500" at Phœnix Park on Saturday. Mr. Kerr paid a mere 70 gns. for him at the Ballsbridge yearling sales last September. That was astute buying.

Earlier in the afternoon Mr. Myerscough had won the selling race for two-year-olds with the dapper chestnut filly, Forrard Away. Always running prominently on the stand side, she came under strong pressure some way out, and in the final furlong proved her stoutheartedness by decisively outstaying the blinkered Basin Street. After the race Mr Myerscough had to go to 280 gns. to retain Forrard Away. She is a half-sister to Mark Forward, and was sold as a yearling for 380 gns.

MILLER 107 NOT OUT

FOR the first time in the Victory Test Matches, Australia batted first; but, apart from K. R. Miller, they made such laborious work of their task that in five hours' cricket at Lord's they scored no more than 273 runs for the loss of five wickets.

The bank holiday crowd of 34,000 people broke the 1938 Australia Test Ground record by 200. England relied mainly on three bowlers, Pope, Pollard and Wright, and at no time were they mastered. Pope kept going for long periods, rarely sending down a loose ball.

Time and again he beat the bat—there were 16 byes—and his three wickets for 71 runs in 32 overs were small compensation for such a gallant effort. Pollard was not so consistent on the heart-breaking wicket, and towards the end came in for punishment.

Miller used three bats, and repeated his Whitsun Test century on the same ground. He is a superb cricketer, who is destined to play a big part when the proper Tests are resumed.

EARLY BLOW

The early loss of Workman at 15 was a severe blow to Australia, but by dogged determination they slowly retrieved the position.

Hassett, the Australian captain, was willing to brighten the game, and he played the ball skilfully off his legs. Then, deflecting Pope, he fell to a superb catch at leg slip by Wright, who, diving across, held on with his right arm extended.

That meant three wickets down for 108. Then Sismey and Miller proceeded to participate in the highest stand of the four matches. In two hours they put on 121 before Sismey was struck on the hand by a ball from Pollard, and retired hurt.

SNAIL'S PACE

Sismey confined himself entirely to defence. His first 15 runs occupied 100 minutes, and in all he spent four hours over 58. Certainly a great effort for his side, and one that probably paved the way for Miller's century by taking some of the edge off the bowling.

Always resourceful, and making the most of his height, Miller again showed his class. His straight driving was sure and clean, and he also cut effectively. Yet the crowd grew so tired of Sismey that there were many empty benches when Miller completed his century in two hours 25 minutes.

Altogether Miller batted two and three-quarter hours and hit nine fours.

Ulster Again To Fore In Men's Events

HONOURS were more or less even at the concluding session of the Irish Swimming Championship Gala at Blackrock Baths, Dublin, yesterday, for Ulster, as expected, won the four men's swimming events, and Leinster won all the women's events decided.

Eddie Heron was the only Leinster man to take a title, winning the Men's High Diving championship for the thirteenth time since the event was instituted in 1933.

E. McCartney (Wellington and Queen's University), with an armful of cups won at the championship swimming gala at Blackrock on Saturday and yesterday. On Sunday he was second in the Talbot Cup race at Bray. On the previous Sunday he won the Kilmartin Cup at Bray.

E. McCartney (Wellington) completed a championship treble, adding the 220 to his previous free-style successes in the 100 and 440 on Saturday. W. J. Lowry retained the 100 yards backstroke title. Wellington won the men's senior squadron for the fifth successive year, while a Belfast youth, G. Weir (East End), took the 100 yards free-style (under 18) title.

It was a great day for Ulster, for their junior water polo team scored a 4-1 win over Munster in a junior inter-provincial.

Miss M. Beckett, of Pembroke, had a treble in the women's and girls' (under 18) sprint events. In the 100 yards free-style she beat her club mate, Miss H. Dagg, by a touch in a desperately close finish, with the holder, Miss K. McNally, close up in third place. She also beat Miss K. McNally (holder) for the 220 and girls (under 18) 100.

The Leinster champion, Miss Audrey Magnier, retained the women's 100 yards breast stroke in time which was 4 2-5 seconds outside the record.

Swedes The Masters

THE Swedish athletic stars, Arne Andersson and Gunder Haegg, proved themselves, at the White City, London, yesterday, to be the supreme masters in the art of long-distance track running. The attendance was 52,000.

These two "Striding Swedes" are over 6ft. in height, similar in build and appearance, and their rhythmical style is a joy to watch. Andersson beat Sydney Wooderson, the British champion, in the mile, after one of the finest duels ever seen at the stadium. There was never more than a few yards between them at any stage.

As they raced shoulder to shoulder, first one and then the other took the lead. Wooderson made a great effort at the end of the third lap, but Andersson, fifty yards from home, jumped ahead, and, to a tremendous roar from the crowd, finished two and a half yards in front in 4 mins. 3.8 secs. Wooderson was only four-tenths of a second behind, his time being 4 mins. 9.2 secs.

It was left to Haegg in the two miles to create a new British amateur record in 9 mins. 0.6 secs—the previous best being J. E. Lovelock's 9 mins. 3.8 secs. at Birmingham in July, 1936.

Haegg's chief rival, Douglas Wilson, faded out after the fifth lap, and Haegg won comfortably from Wilson by 120 yards.

ARMY SHOOTING

At the All-Army shooting competitions, which opened at the Curragh yesterday, the marksmanship throughout was of higher standard than ever. The rifle team competition (48 teams of six) and the light automatic machine-gun competition (33 teams of two), with which are incorporated the combined rifle and light automatic competition for the "Marksman Cup," were completed.

Leading teams at the close were:—1st Brigade, H.Q., 349; 6th Brigade, H.Q., 347; 31st Battalion, 344; 3rd Battalion, 342; 15th Battalion, 341; 22nd Battalion, 337; 19th Battalion, 337. The 6th Brigade team made an auspicious start by being the only team to score a possible in the first practice (150).

At the close of four practices in the light automatic competition the 22nd Battalion team were ahead with 181 points. The leading teams in the combined rifle and light automatic competition were as follows:—31st Battalion, 519; 22nd Battalion, 518; 21st Battalion, 515; 23rd Battalion, 513; 12th Battalion, 505; 13th Battalion, 503.

PHŒNIX FAIL

Despite a patient contribution of 83 not out by J. C. Boucher, Phœnix fell far short of Leinster's huge total of 357, at Rathmines, yesterday, and were beaten by 160 runs. Boucher was the only Phœnix batsman to run up a big score, and he took over three hours to do it, having several narrow escapes, through poor Leinster fielding, on the way. He hit five 4's and a 5.

Leinster 357.

O'BRIEN—BRABAZON DOUBLE

DESPITE some heavy showers, there was an unusually large company at Mallow for the final holiday fixture. The Limerick Junction Plate was the most valuable event on the card, and, in view of the way Eire won from Last Loch, it seems likely that he is a really good horse.

Indeed, Mr. M. V. O'Brien may have been unlucky to have missed a treble by the fall of Jesse. However, the O'Brien-Brabazon combination did well with a double.

The slippery grass was responsible for three of seven runners for the Tipperary Plate falling on the flat, while Capital Star came down at the final fence, Playmate III winning easily from Broken Promise.

South Riding was backed like a good thing for the Southern Plate, and he and Prince Tom fought out a strenuous finish, in which the latter prevailed.

Pat Lacy was always prominent in the Charleville Plate, but half a mile from home was headed by Doctor Bill, who crossed the last flight in front. On the flat Pat Lacy had too much pace for him, and won comfortably.

Milk Bar won the Fermoy Plate from Indecision in a strenuous finish. Indecision led until the final flight, where Milk Bar took a slight lead, which he held to the finish. An objection to the winner was sustained and the race awarded to Indecision.

CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS

There was a lot of grief in the Bantry 'Chase. Mr. Star fell early, and soon after Middy's Charm bolted. About half-way Brighter Sandys slipped up on the flat and brought Jesse down, Camas Bridge then winning easily from the other pair. It was some recompense to Tim Hyde for his ill-luck in the previous event.

Those who laid the odds on Topline for the Mount Ruby Plate got a great fright. He took the lead half-way up the straight, but near the finish Duhallow Boy closed the gap and was beaten by only half a length.

Steadiness Of The Funds

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

FORTUNATE is the investor who resolutely kept to Savings Certificates and the various other securities introduced since 1939 for the main object of financing the war. Such investments can be cashed in full today, but why withdraw the money simply because the London Stock Exchange become nervous? The money is far better left in such investments than kept in a stocking, which might be mislaid, lost or stolen. British Funds stand aloof from the avalanche of falling prices in other sections. No apparent reason exists to-day for any other attitude in a market for the funds.

The war has been won with the aid of cheap money and no reason exists why peace-time developments cannot be financed as successfully on the same lines. It is accepted that certain industries and services in the country will be nationalised. Statements made by members of the new Government indicate that there is no intention of confiscating industry.

FUTURE BORROWING

New loans must, therefore, be raised to replace the securities now existing. It is accepted that fancy rates of interest on new borrowing will be avoided and that finance required for many projects will be obtained on the cheapest possible terms. Machinery for this purpose already exists. The late Government arranged that Home Corporations shall in future borrow from a Central Fund provided through Government borrowing. Many expensive Corporation loans have already been converted successfully into new issues, carrying a maximum of 3 p.c. interest. No apparent reason exists why this policy should be changed. The only possibility is that future borrowing will be on even cheaper terms. The call for finance will certainly be extensive if the various projects credited to the new Government are to materialise.

A building drive will, doubtless, be experienced. Most materials necessary for building will, probably, be controlled and prices fixed, which is on the lines already existing. Local authorities will finance building on cheap money raised by a National Loan at low rates of interest. These points are frequently overlooked. Finance is necessary for other important projects, and it is conceivable that the new Administration will provide such finance from the extensive financial resources of the country on the most favourable terms possible.

NO PANIC

The Corporation of London recently raised £500,000 in a 3 p.c. 1962-65 Loan, which was placed in private quarters. The price at which the Loan was issued was 99½ p.c. This Loan was subscribed for on August 1st. A Stock Exchange quotation of £99 to £101 exists for this Loan, but no public transactions have been reported. Market opinion is that little, if any, of this stock will be available in the market. It will be held by the original subscribers as a permanent investment. No panic exists in leading financial circles.

No British Request For U.S. Credit

Mr. Joseph Grew, U.S. Acting Secretary of State, has denied reports that the Administration has any immediate plan to ask Congress to approve a $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 credit to Britain.

He declared, however, that the U.S. should help to solve Britain's financial problems in all reasonable ways, adding: "The State Department believes that serious consideration should be given to any request the British might make for credits on a proper scale and appropriate terms."

Mr. Grew was replying to a letter from Mr. Emmanuel Celler, Democratic representative of New York, inquiring about published reports that Britain had approached the State Department regarding such a loan. He denied that any such approach had been made, and added: "Nor have we any present plans for requesting legislation to authorise such credits."

Baby In Mullingar Cathedral Belfry

Early yesterday morning a male infant was found in the belfry of the Cathedral of Christ the King, Mullingar. The discovery was made by Miss Josephine Duffy, Robinstown, Mullingar, who heard a baby crying shortly after she had entered the cathedral. After a search she found the baby, well clad, and wrapped in a blanket. A bottle half full of milk and water was lying beside it.

The baby, which is in excellent health, is believed to be not more than ten days old.

The Guards are anxious to trace two girls who were seen entering the cathedral yesterday morning between 10.30 and 11 a.m., one of whom was carrying a baby. No one seems to have seen them leave.

The baby was removed to the County Hospital, Mullingar.

Man Found Under a Table

"I am in for a sleep," was the statement alleged to have been made to a Civic Guard by one of two men found hiding under a table in a house in Townsend street, Dublin, according to evidence tendered in Dublin District Court yesterday when the men, Alfred Gurr (22), no occupation, of Emerald place, off Sheriff street, and William Mann (20), St. Michan's House, Mary's lane, were charged with entering the house with intent to commit a felony. Both were remanded.

Guard H. Sherlock said that between 3 and 4 a.m. on Sunday he found the men hiding under a table in the house 49 Townsend street, and when he asked Gurr what he was doing he made the statement given above. Mann, when questioned, replied: "That is my business." Subsequently, when charged, both replied that they had nothing to say.

Railway Workers To Seek Better Wages

Twenty thousand Irish railwaymen are seeking improved wages and conditions, and the proposals will shortly be placed before the managements of all the Irish railways by the National Union of Railwaymen and the Railway Clerks' Association. The Railway Clerks' Association represents the salaried and supervisory grades, while the National Union of Railwaymen represents guards, porters and permanent way men.

Wall Street Closed Irregular

The Stock Exchange opened steady but quiet. Rails, utilities and specialities advanced, while Steels and few miscellaneous issues declined fractionally in slow dealings. Customers are awaiting President Truman's official report, which is expected late this week, on the Potsdam accomplishments.

The market sold off in the afternoon, following the disclosure of existence of atomic bombs and Mr. Stimson's announcement that these would be of considerable aid in shortening the Pacific war.

The trend of the market at the close was irregular. Of the 795 issues traded, 310 advanced, 300 declined and 185 remained unchanged.

COMPANY NEWS

Cash and Co., Ltd., Cork—Interim dividends for the half year ended July 31st, 1945, on the Preference shares at the rate of 5½ per cent. per annum; on the Ordinary shares at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, both less tax.

International Nickel.—The International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., has declared a dividend of 40 cents on the common shares—unchanged from the previous payment.

Carrier-Pigeon Found.—Mr. C. J. W. Richardson, Hillside, Baily, Howth, is anxious to find the owner of a carrier-pigeon No. 7016 N.U. 45 J., which flew into his house last week.

"Make Canada the Best Land On Earth"

Mr. Mackenzie King, Canadian Prime Minister, opening the Dominion Provincial Conference on Reconstruction, in the House of Commons in Ottawa yesterday, appealed to a chamber filled with Federal and Provincial Cabinet Ministers, deputies and advisers "to work together to make Canada a land of ever-widening opportunities for all our people, regardless of their origin or class or religion—the best land on earth in which to work and to live."

He introduced a statement of his Government's proposals, which forecast a substantial reduction of war-time taxation and the removal of war-time controls as rapidly as possible, and include the offer of a three-year agreement between the Federal and the nine Provincial Governments covering finance and health insurance.

The only amendment proposed to the British North America Act is to enable the Provinces to delegate constitutional powers to the Dominion and vice versa.—(Reuter.)

Railway Strikers To Return To Work

Railwaymen at Liverpool, centre of the "No-Sunday-Work" movement, decided to resume work at midnight yesterday. Little effect was felt yesterday by the men's absence, and scenes at Liverpool stations were those of a normal August bank holiday. Travellers were got away without much inconvenience.

Goods traffic has accumulated in sidings at Edge Hill, one of the largest marshalling yards in the country, and at Aintree, and it will probably take some time to clear these yards.

Crewe railwaymen returned to work yesterday, and the usual bank holiday services operated.

Boat services between Folkestone and Calais were also running after Sunday's suspension, and shortly before mid-day the Princess Maud docked at Folkestone with 1,500 soldiers. She was expected with another 1,500 later.

Dublin Absentee Now Volunteers For Pacific

Sapper Thomas Joseph Mahon (24), of Marrowbone lane, Dublin, who surrendered himself to the authorities at Newry on July 13th last, was charged at a court-martial at Wolverhampton, yesterday, with being absent from his unit since May, 1943. He denied being a deserter.

Mahon contended that as an Irish Free State citizen he had not been obliged to surrender to the British Army, but, "to make up for lost time," he had now volunteered for service in the Far East.

He had joined in January, 1943, went home on leave in May that year, and stayed because of his wife's illness.

The findings of the Court will be made known.

Ship's Cargo of Coal On Fire

A wireless message received from the Norwegian steamer Rolf Jarl has reported: "Fire in coal cargo; proceeding to Kopervik for assistance to extinguish fire," states Lloyd's "Shipping Intelligence."

The Rolf Jarl, which was on a voyage from Immingham to Norway, is a vessel of 1,917 tons gross.

If it's NEURALGIA—..look to your NERVES

You can remove the pain of neuralgia with a sedative. But if the nervous system is not getting its own particular re-vitalizing food then bodily pain will recur as sure as night follows day. Dr. Cassell's removes pain by a process of rectifying the nervous system. It gradually replenishes the vital body cells with energy and power. It enriches the blood and corrects disorders of the stomach. Appetite returns and pain goes because you are keeping the "Power Station" at its proper working level.

Every day, grateful people write to say how Dr. Cassell's tablets have freed them from all nerve troubles. Why not try them yourself? Price 1/3 & 3/-.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism—however mild your symptoms—exacts a merciless toll in pain and expense if not checked in time. Poisons and impurities in your system are usually the cause of rheumatic disorders. To get rid of these poisons doctors recommend the drinking of mineral spa waters. But a visit to a spa involves time and expense that many people simply cannot afford these days.

'Alkia' Saltrates may be described as a spa treatment in your own home. It contains the essential curative qualities of seven world-famous springs and has the same beneficial effect on the system at a fraction of the cost and without the inconvenience of travelling to an actual spa. A teaspoonful of 'Alkia' Saltrates in warm water before breakfast each morning soon relieves pain. Taken regularly, this pleasant, effervescent drink dissolves impurities in the blood-stream and greatly assists the kidneys to eliminate them from the system, thus helping to prevent recurring attacks of rheumatism.

A bottle of 'Alkia' Saltrates costs 3/6. Get one from your chemist to-day and begin your spa treatment to-morrow morning.

MR. ATTLEE'S TEAM

Britain's new Premier, Mr Clement Attlee, has completed the selection of his Government. In normal circumstances it would have been completed in substantially less time than ten days after the Premier's own acceptance of office; but Mr. Attlee had time to make only a few major appointments before he had to revisit Potsdam for the conclusion of the fateful "Big Three" talks and the publication of their results. Few people on this side of the Channel are in a position to judge whether he has chosen well or badly. Indeed, most of the British newspapers are reserving judgment; for there are many unfamiliar names in the list of the new Ministers. It is noted, however, that Mr. Attlee has confined his choice to the veterans of the Labour Party—in other words, to those members who already had Parliamentary experience. That is a very natural course to adopt. Approximately two-thirds of the Labour members in the new Parliament are untried in formal politics, and to place them in charge of a complicated department of Government would be a risk that no Premier could venture to take. The net effect, however, is that Mr. Attlee finds himself in command of a comparatively elderly team, and he may be compelled, as the months draw on, to invigorate it with an occasional infusion of younger blood. The programme which he and his party have set themselves is elaborate enough, and perilous enough, to call for all the best qualities of youth, as well as of maturity. British Labour cannot afford to "hedge" any longer. On the two brief occasions when it held office between the wars, it dared make no attempt to put Socialism into practice; for it was spancelled by its lack of a clear majority, and, in practice, turned out to be hardly less conservative than the Conservatives themselves. This time it has a clear mandate from a people which evidently has given thought to the issues at stake, and will insist on the implementation of the Labour Party's promises. In addition, it is confronted by the most gigantic commitments abroad that any British Government, Labour, Liberal, or Conservative, ever has had to face. Britain still is an active belligerent in the war against Japan, and she is one of the three Powers which, to all intents and purposes, have the remodelling of the world in their hands. Mr. Attlee's position is proud, but far from easy. He will need all the support that he can get, and nobody will be surprised if he is compelled to reshuffle his Government many times before he gets it.

Internally, the reconstruction of Britain will call for every ounce of the Government's energy. If Labour fails to fulfil its promises, it will receive short shrift. However it may be opposed by those mysterious "financial interests"—the counterpart in Labour jargon of the late Herr Hitler's "international Jewry"—it is pledged to the rapid nationalisation of Britain's greatest industries, including coal and transport. The case for State control of the mines is—in theory, at least—strong. Once the source of Britain's wealth, the coal industry has declined sadly in efficiency since the Great War of 1914-18—so sadly, indeed, that it failed to supply the nation's needs during the greater struggle that followed. Many half-hearted attempts have been made to restore order to the industry, but none has come to anything, and the Labour Party holds that only a clean break with the past can be effective. That, however, is only one element in the enormous programme before them. We in Ireland have small idea of the appalling extent to which Great Britain's entire economy has been dislocated by the war. It is not merely that tens of thousands of houses have been levelled with the ground, and that whole cities require, if not rebuilding, at any rate, reshaping. The whole balance of the country, such as it was, has been disturbed. Towns that were centres of industry are no longer so; new industrial towns have sprung into being. What is to be done about it? Is it Britain's desire to return, with all possible speed, to the status quo—to restore the balance and distribution that existed before the war? Labour—with, indeed, the support of most thinking people—says "No." The old order was not good; it provided too few opportunities to too many people to live a decent life. The prevalent view is that an entirely new Britain must be created—a properly "planned" nation, with a different distribution of industries and fuller scope for agriculture. All honour will be due to Mr. Attlee and his colleagues if they can make even a successful beginning of such a task; for many forces will be arrayed against them.

Bank Holiday

It is a melancholy thought that the beautiful weather which characterised almost the whole of last week should have "turned sour" for the occasion of the bank holiday week-end. That sort of thing happens regularly, and one pities the thousands of city people, tied for so long to machine or office stool, when the brief interlude of freedom to which they have looked forward so ardently proves a disappointment. Nevertheless, Dublin takes its disappointment very philosophically. If the mountains and the sea-beach are out of the question, there are always the "flicks." Perhaps, the hardships of the past few years have contributed to this new spirit of resignation. After all, even when sunshine has favoured an odd bank holiday, there has been the problem of transport, giving the lie to all hopes. Some day, perhaps, conditions will be easier. It will be possible to set out for Bray or Howth, even on the brightest of bank holidays, at 9.30 in the morning, with, at least, a reasonable assurance that one's destination will be reached before noon. Holiday travel in these days calls for optimism of a high order; yet optimism of that kind is wonderfully widespread. Even nowadays, after all those years of "emergency conditions," it is possible to see whole families arrive at the station within five minutes of a train's departure, supremely confident that they will catch it—and not merely will catch it, but will find corner seats in abundance. It is an admirable spirit—not, perhaps, the spirit of caution that makes for worldly success, but certainly the spirit that treats life as a game, and takes pleasure in the playing of it.

£262 FINE

At Newbridge, before District Justice Moloney, Mr. P. Foy, Managing Director of the Foy and McGovern Cinema Company, Ltd., was fined £50, mitigated to £12 10s., on each of 21 summonses (amounting to £262 10s.) brought by the Revenue Commissioners against his company for breaches of the Entertainment Tax Regulations on December 28th, 1944.

The summonses were for failure to return to the patrons the appropriate portion of the Government tickets issued to them on admission.

Evidence was given by Revenue officers from Dublin, who paid a visit of inspection, by members of the audience, by the managing director of the defendant company and by members of the cinema staff.

Twelve other summonses were adjourned to the October sitting of the Court.

FILM ACTOR RESCUES BOY

Frank Sinatra, the film actor, saved a three-year-old boy from drowning in Los Angeles harbour yesterday.

The boy fell 13 feet from a railing to the dock and rolled unconscious into the water. Sinatra, who was nearby, rushed across the dock, dived in and pulled the boy to safety.—(A.P.)

"MARKS AND MABEL"

Brinsley MacNamara's new comedy got off to a flying start at the Abbey Theatre last night, before a crowded and appreciative house. In this play the author goes back to the Heffernan family of "Look at the Heffernans," and shows that the affairs of that entertaining clan were by no means settled for ever by their wholesale matrimony. Trouble starts in the first few minutes. Alice Heffernan, now married to Ignatius Crinnion, runs away from her husband because he makes life so unpleasant over her father's failure to pay her promised dowry. James, her father, decides to pay up to avoid the scandal; but, when his advanced daughter-in-law, Mabel, takes a hand, things fail to go according to plan. In the subsequent plotting and twisting, the Widow Molloy, now Mrs. Sydney Heffernan, operates with all her former cunning; but everything works out to a conscientiously happy ending, with James Heffernan still single, and the tattling tailor, Festus Darby, on the road to the altar. From this domestic entanglement the author extracts a great deal of fairly simple fun. In the early stages of the play progress is delayed a little by the necessity for explaining the situation to those who have not made the acquaintance of the Heffernans before, and at the end the plot winds down slowly through the dissemination of happiness among all the characters; but, as a whole, the comedy is excellent entertainment, which suited exactly the mood of a bank holiday audience.

F. J. McCormick stands out in the cast, by the consummate artistry of his portrait of Festus Darby. Here one recognised, as always, a complete actor, who had the audience at his finger-tips from his first entrance; every word, every gesture, every tilt of an eyebrow was good for a laugh. In the pivot part of Mabel, Siobhan Nic Chionnaith displayed the zeal of a talented amateur. Brid Ni Loinsigh, on the other hand, gave one of her most finished performances in the rôle of Alice Crinnion. Denis O'Dea was a pleasantly awkward Marks Heffernan, and Michael Dolan, Eileen Crowe and Fred Johnson gave the satisfactory performances that one expects of veteran Abbey actors. The play was produced by Frank Dermody, and Alicia Sweetman's sophisticated shop interior struck an unusual note for this theatre.

"LET'S GO" AT THE GAIETY

The new revue, "Let's Go," which opened at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, last night, is one of the brightest and most entertaining shows that O'D. Productions have yet presented. The script, for which Harry O'Donovan is responsible, is full of witty, topical allusions, and the situations give Jimmy O'Dea full scope for his genius. His impersonation of Kitty the Can-Can Girl is one of the cleverest studies our star comedian has yet put over. His patter, both here and later, in such scenes as "Twas ever thus" and "Kings are trumps," is mirth-provoking, especially the many dry political references. Three mystery plays which were seen in Dublin in the last year are cleverly burlesqued, and there is also yet another of those "Mulligan" domestic scenes.

The shows runs to twenty scenes, with a great array of talent. Those appearing are Renee Flynn, soprano, and Sean Mooney, baritone, in a well-balanced song scene; Stephen Black, baritone, in popular Irish songs, what time he is not acting as compère; Jim Jonson, Josie Day and Vernon Hayden, supporting Jimmy O'Dea, as well as providing an amusing scene of their own; Maureen Potter singing, acting and dancing in her usual talented style; and Billy Braniff, of "Irish Half-Hour" fame, working wonders with a tin whistle. Noel and Ursula Doyle are a clever pair of youngsters, and Eileen Bradley is a promising young soprano.

There is good dancing and miming by George Begley, Florence Delaney and Patricia in "Warsaw Concerto," and also in a scene depicting the "Evolution of the Dance." The show is beautifully produced, the decor being by Carl Bonn, and the stage direction by T. St. John Barry. With a little pruning and speeding-up, it is a show which all Dubliners will say, "Let's Go" and see.

OTHER THEATRES

Olympia. — Somerset Maugham is one of those authors about whose work there is always great diversity of opinion. The fact, however, remains that anything written by him is absorbing to read, and, when translated into terms of the stage, good theatre. "Rain" is one of his better-known stories, and embodies most of the Maugham characteristics, the nonchalant sneer at the conventions and the equally nonchalant defence of what is known as "the seamy side." One never knows whether Mr. Maugham is genuine or not; in fact, one never knows where his sympathies really lie.

All this, however, does not prevent "Rain" from being a first-rate evening's entertainment. Here we have several different types of people thrown together in the lush atmosphere of the monsoon season on an island somewhere in the South Seas. The plot abounds in action and dramatic situations; the fact that the same situations and the characters are underlined almost to the point of exaggeration, appears only to add to the opportunities of the cast.

Miss Liane Ordeyne, the Continental actress, is introduced to Dublin for the first time in the rôle of Sadie Thompson. Miss Ordeyne is the vanguard of the returning visiting artists to this country, and if they all attain her standard, the city will be fortunate. Sadie Thompson is a wonderful part, and Miss Ordeyne does full justice to it. It gives her ample scope for emotional acting, and it is in these scenes that she excels herself. A packed house gave several bursts of spontaneous applause after her scenes with Stanley Illsley as the unctuous missionary.

In a large and capable cast, Bob Lepler, as the European who has gone "native," gives a fine performance; Stanley Illsley, the producer, is convincing in an unsympathetic rôle, which might have become laughable; Leo McCabe gives a straightforward performance as a sergeant in the marines, and Sheila Maguire, Anne Fraser and Dorrie Monson are excellent in supporting rôles.

Royal.—The current show, "Royal Brocade," must rank as one of the finest productions that this theatre has staged. It is colourful, with plenty of excellent comedy, singing, dancing and spectacular scenes.

It is strange to find a Biblical episode in a vaudeville programme; yet the launching of Noah's Ark and its coming to rest on Mount Ararat made a remarkable appeal to the audience.

Maurice Keary's singing of "Behold Darkness Fell Upon the Earth" and "The Lord is My Life and My Salvation" was most impressive. Noel Purcell on a visit to the Ministry of Supplies provided plenty of fun, and he was also in good form in the presentation of two playlets—a gangster story and a burlesque Abbey drama—played simultaneously. Eddie Byrne, Michael Ripper, Robert Hennessey and Pauline Forbes were the other players. Maureen Keane sings delightfully in a song scena.

VOCATIONALISM IN AGRICULTURE

IF agriculture had been properly organised many of the ills from which it was suffering would never have appeared, and the country would have been better off, said Mr. P. D. Lehane, secretary of the Cork Farmers' Association, when he read a paper on the organisation of agriculture at the second day's session of Muintir na Tire Rural Week at De La Salle College, Waterford, yesterday.

If one-half of their people had very little purchasing power, he said, commercial and industrial activities would be restricted. They had failed to organise the farming community for a variety of reasons. Since 1916 or 1917 those engaged in other callings had organised into vocational organisations, trade unions and professional associations, which resulted in improved conditions of employment for workers and a tendency from rural to urban employment.

Referring to vocational organisation for agriculture, which he said he favoured, Mr. Lehane stated that they had paid dearly for lack of it in the past. The agricultural industry had been regulated on bureaucratic lines and administered by boards and officials. Vocational bodies which were set up to advise on agricultural matters were either abolished or ignored.

Having regard to the brains and ability of the distinguished persons who drafted the report of the vocational commission and the time and thought which they devoted to its compilation he said that one hesitated to disagree with any of their recommendations, but it struck him that the scheme of organisation suggested was very complicated, allowed for a good deal of overlapping and might not work satisfactorily. The Commission had done a great deal in providing facts and a line on which to build up an organisation.

Mr. Lehane, alluding to the appointment of a successor to the Most Rev. Dr. Dignan as chairman of the National Health Society said that they were coming very much to the stage where bureaucracy was going to control everything.

THE CORK STREET CASE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—The importance of the Cork Street Hospital episode has been obscured by partisan insistence on the efficiency and probity or otherwise of the Board, by the question of central control versus local authority, and/or private philanthropy, by the technical versus administrative controversy.

Most of these questions have already been conclusively settled and are consequently side-issues. Rationalisation of social services over large areas to provide for equality of benefits in districts of unequal prosperity is a principle that was already being accepted in the 19th century, and the I.L.O. report, "Approaches to Social Security" (Studies and Reports, M 18), shows it embodied in the legislation of every reasonably progressive State. It is obvious that where the central Government contributes it must exercise some measure of control.

To-day the complexity of the tasks of government makes even the harshest critics of bureaucracy—for example, Lord Hewart, author of "The New Despotism"—agree to the need for a large measure of delegated legislation. They agree, in fact, that every detail of the administration of everything in which the State is concerned cannot be dealt with by the Dail. Much must be left to the discretion of the responsible Ministry. Ministers must have the power to make orders. As Frankfurter in his "Law in Politics" puts it, "The manifold response of government to the forces and needs of modern society is the building up of laws not drawn up by legislatures."

How to keep delegated legislation within the framework of democracy, how to use this "remote control" to preserve and increase, not to impair, efficiency—that is the burning problem of practical government and citizenship to-day. America, for instance, is apparently still floundering wildly under masses of largely undelegated legislation, while some of the progressive small States of Western Europe seem to have mastered the art of self-government. Our neighbour Britain's troubles in this respect, and some suggested solutions, are contained in the "Donoughmore Report." Its framers found that under delegated legislation democracy could be safeguarded,

(a) By the right of veto of the legislature while an order is tabled;

(b) By the possibility of appealing against an order in a court of law—though this does not, of course, apply where the Minister has been given full discretion;

(c) By the administrative check—that is, by requiring that all administrative tribunals, inquiries, etc., shall abide by these minimum conventions: (1) No man shall be judge in his own cause; (2) No party shall be condemned unheard; (3) The procedure shall be known; (4) The reasons for every decision shall be given; (5) The findings shall be made available to the public.

We cannot stop the wheels from turning. Delegated legislation is necessary to-day, and it has come to stay. Since we cannot do without it, we must learn to control it. There lies the political importance of the Cork street uproar. The public felt that they were losing their grip on the administrative machine. Cork street was only one instance, a symptom of this loss of control. Relatively, it is unimportant whether the Board's dismissal was justified or not. What is important is that the call for the famous "inspector's report" is the first public endeavour here to have recognised those fundamental conventions which keep the reins in the citizens' hands.

Legislators, administrators and citizens cannot frame laws for every contingency, but, fortunately, the letter of the law is not everything; and where gaps are left we can have recourse to that general principle on which we have chosen to found our society—democracy. And democracy—not this law or that—demands that we should establish on the firm base of public opinion and policy the following rules for the making of decisions under the legislation we delegate to our Ministers—the rules of—

(1) Known procedure;
(2) Impartiality;
(3) No arbitrary decision.
(4) Publicity for findings.

—Yours, etc.,
MARGARET MORTISHED.

U.S. FINANCIERS BACKED HITLER

American financiers actively backed Hitler and the Nazi movement in 1930 as a means of combating Socialism in Germany, it is indicated in documents released by the U.S. State Department, in accordance with its policy of publishing State papers after 15 years, states the Associated Press.

Mr. George A. Gordon, U.S. Chargé d'Affaires in Berlin, wrote to the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry Stimson, that "Hitler received very substantial financial support from certain large industrial interests." He judged, however, that their influence on him had been "definitely a restraining one."

Elsewhere he wrote that he had heard that "certain American financial interests" were actively supporting Hitler as a means of fighting Socialism.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Home to Our Mountains

GERALDINE FITZGERALD, Ireland's most distinguished film actress, will board an American Export flying-boat some time this afternoon at La Guardia Airport, New York, with her young son and nurse, and arrive at Foynes early to-morrow morning. She is coming home from Hollywood for a holiday of several months.

This will be something of an occasion for the nurse. She is Mary Gillan, from Antrim, and once upon a time she was Geraldine's own nurse, in Greystones, Co. Wicklow.

(In case you should be sneering about the use of the Christian name, I've got to say it again. I used to throw stones at Geraldine, when she was seven, in Greystones, and cried easily.)

In the course of time Mary Gillan went to America. Twenty years later, in New York, she met Geraldine, now grown up. Geraldine was looking for a nurse for her son. Mary Gillan—creating a promising scenario by a single stroke—took over the job.

Good Marks

You may not be ready, at first, to accept the fact in its entirety, but American troops serving abroad are now being redeployed after readjustment—provided, of course, as you rightly suggest, that transportation can be made available for them.

There is really nothing to redeployment after readjustment, where transportation is available, if you approach the matter slowly, at a kind of controlled, loping run. It stands like this.

The U.S. War Office has devised a system of points. Some people like to say that the U.S. War Office has devised a system of credits. It just shows that everybody is different, basically. After the soldier has achieved a certain number of points he can go home.

Points—or credits, or possibly even credit points—are calculated from September 16th, 1940. The soldier scores one point for every month that he has served in the Army since that date. He scores one point for every month he has been overseas, two points for every decoration, and seven points for every child under eighteen, up to the maximum of three. This last item comes under the heading of "Parentage Credit." For the definition of parentage, soldiers are advised to see: "Paragraph 2 b, c, and f, AR 35-5540"—as if they didn't know.

It's Like This

So that every man's credits—or point credits—can be presented in a coherent form, every man is provided with an "Adjusted Service Rating Card." His card is filled up for him by Army clerks. He is then shown the card. Rather a fine thing happens now. "The enlisted person indicates his verification and acceptance of the accuracy of the data recorded by placing his initials on the Adjusted Service Rating."

The whole system appears to be almost laughably straightforward; until you meet somebody who has been caught up in it.

The first example is that of a technical sergeant classed as: "Writer on military subjects." He admitted to having some doubt about whether you got seven or twelve points for a child. Pressed to continue, he allowed that it was fairly certain that you scored for the Silver Star Medal; but it might be that the Navy and Marine Corps Medal was outside the classification.

The second example is that of a fighter pilot, relict of the U.S.A.A.F. dinner at the Gresham Hotel on August 1st. He said: "I got hunn'erd five points, and 85—or maybe 74—gets you home, but I'm expendable, see, and anyway, officers don't come into the plan."

It seems that it will be some time yet before Piccadilly is entirely cleared.

All Together, Please

While singing during the week-end, I came across this rather catchy number. It comes from Eric Maschwitz's musical show, "Balalaika," and is rightly headed "Vocal Gems."

The number goes like this:

Nichevo! Nichevo! There was nothing doing, so,
I go to, I go fro,
But the answer's always Nichevo!
Nichevo! Nichevo! There was nothing doing, so,
I go to, I go fro,
But the answer's always Nichevo!

I don't see how Eric Maschwitz got to hear about it, but it's an almost perfect example of the way that things keep on working out round here.

Wise Child

The Schools' Committee "Safety First" Association of Ireland has just issued a safety first handbook for children.

Included in other sound advice is a page of rhymes, which present various maxims in a form easily to be memorised.

One of the rhymes is entitled "For Walkers." It goes:

"Look to the right," says Timothy,
"Look to the left," says May.
"Look to the right, then to the left,
Cross when it's clear," says Gay.

It seems to me that Gay, by his wider viewpoint, should be voted the most likely to succeed of these three young persons. He is also likely to live the longest.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON.
MONDAY NIGHT.

DR. ALBERT MANSBRIDGE, C.H., founder of the Workers' Educational Association, the World Association for Adult Education, and the Seafarers' Education Association, and pioneer of adult education in Great Britain, retires this week. He and his wife will live at Paignton, Devon.

Dr. Mansbridge founded the W.E.A. 42 years ago, and he and his wife were the first two members. He also founded the National Central Library and the British Institute of Adult Education. He has been President of the Co-operative Permanent Building Society for some years and has a national reputation as author and speaker.

Anti-Semitism Condemned

Flight-Lieutenant John E. Haire, the new Labour M.P. for Wycombe, whose marriage to Miss Suzanne Kemeny was noted by "Nichevo" on Saturday, to-day contradicted a rumour which received some circulation in Buckinghamshire both before and since polling day.

"It has been said, presumably with the intention of discrediting me, that I am a Jew," Flight-Lieutenant Haire declared. "Quite simply this is not true. I am, in fact, a member of the Church of England, as my family before me have been for many generations. Many people in this constituency and in the country at large are lending themselves, possibly unwittingly, to calculated attacks on the Jews. We must be on our guard against this anti-Semitism, which is little short of Fascism. The debt of the world to these gifted and industrious people is great. Historians will consider that one of the greatest mistakes Hitler made was to drive the Jews from Germany."

World Aviation

The British Overseas Airways Corporation, which operates regularly well over 55,000 miles of routes, is vitally concerned in the meeting of the Commonwealth and Empire conference on radio for civil aviation, which opens here to-morrow, and which will last a fortnight.

In five years of war the Corporation's aircraft have flown more than 55,000,000 miles. B.O.A.C. aircraft flew an average distance on every day of last year of over 51,000 miles—the equivalent of more than twice round the world. The Corporation's return ferry service has been the only two-way service operating over the North Atlantic route through four winters of war. Recently the 1,500th flight was completed. This service is quite distinct from the B.O.A.C. flying-boat service between Baltimore and Foynes.

War Memorials

The question of war memorials is much in the news just now, and a Gallup Poll taken recently showed that nine people out of ten were in favour of useful and practical memorials. Suggested alternatives to the cenotaph or granite cross are amphitheatres, parks, children's playgrounds, libraries, hospitals, memorial highways and civic centres.

The country is already studded with many marble and granite memorials, erected after the last war. At their worst, these are sadly uninspiring, and at their best—as in Edinburgh—reach a standard of beauty unsurpassable in their medium.

SAILOR'S LEAD IN BALLET

A thirty-two years' old British sailor, John Osborne, who practised ballet dancing on a destroyer and later became the protégé of Signora Bianca Gallizia, ballet mistress of the famous San Carlo Opera House in Naples, is shortly to take the lead in a new ballet production of "Rhapsody in Blue."

Osborne is a rating in the British destroyer Atherstone. Before he joined the Navy, in 1943, he was making a name for himself in ballet under the nom de guerre of John Cranston.

He started in ballet at the age of 13, and has toured Great Britain with Markova and Anton Dolin and Southern Germany with the "Ballet Russe."

FORESTERS' CONVENTION

At the Northern Ireland convention of Foresters at Omagh yesterday, Mr. Gerard O'Neill, High Chief Ranger, said that the Order was in a good position, financially and otherwise. The membership had increased by 300 in the year.

For the ensuing year Mr. Henry Morris, junior, Enniskillen, was elected High Chief Ranger and Mr. John McGinnis, Belfast, High Sub-chief Ranger. Messrs. Joseph Gallagher (Omagh), Charles McGreevy (Warrenpoint) and Patrick F. Keenan (Ballyholland, Co. Down) were appointed trustees.

'DRINK YOUR HEALTH'-EASE
RHEUMATISM

IT sounds easy, doesn't it? But doctors will tell you that a glass of hot water sipped slowly, every morning before breakfast, will help to purify the blood by thoroughly cleansing and flushing out the accumulation of acids in your system, which are often the cause of Rheumatism. Hot water alone, however, often is not enough; a teaspoonful of effervescing 'Limestone' Phosphate added to the water will act far more quickly and will speedily flush from the liver, kidneys and bowels all the pain-causing acids; you will be amazed how quickly Rheumatic pain is relieved. Get a jar of 'Limestone' Phosphate to-day, price 2/8 and rid yourself of Rheumatism this pleasant, easy way.

GET RID OF YOUR INDIGESTION LIKE I DID

You need not put up with those dreadful burning indigestion symptoms. At the first sign of distress after meals take a dose of 'Milk of Magnesia'. It corrects acidity and stops digestive upsets.

Go to your chemist and ask for 'Milk of Magnesia', 1/3 and 2/6. Always remember that there is nothing "just as good" as

'MILK of MAGNESIA'

'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of magnesia.

Why False Teeth Wearers Have Bad Breath!

MILLIONS SUFFER WITHOUT KNOWING!

You can't notice any odour from your plate—but others can! Dentists call this odour "denture breath." It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on dental plates. And it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing can't get this scum off—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! It actually purifies without brushing — gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odour—and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new. Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident may be used with confidence on the new type plastic dentures. Approved by all good dentists everywhere. Obtainable from all Chemists and Drug Stores.

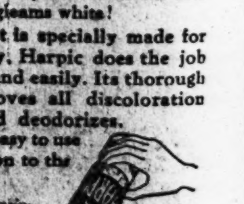
How to clean the lavatory

To clean the lavatory thoroughly and effectively, simply sprinkle a little Harpic into the bowl and leave as long as possible (last thing at night is a good time). Then flush. The whole bowl gleams white!

Because it is specially made for the lavatory, Harpic does the job effectively and easily. Its thorough action removes all discoloration—cleans and deodorizes.

Harpic is easy to use — a real boon to the housewife.



Harpic's cleansing action reaches right round the S-bend. The whole bowl is clean and sanitary—the part you don't see, as well.
